Dr. Westrick Says Purpose In Nation Is To Open Way For Trading

NEW YORK, August 3 — Following revelation by the German consulate that hundreds of mail and telephone threats had been made against Dr. Gerhard A. Westrick, German trade envoy, a 24-hour police guard today was assigned to watch the Scarsdale home of the Hitler emissary.

Decision to assign the night and day police guard was made after the consulate had lodged an official protest with the Federal Bureau of Investigation against the inconvenience and annoyance which the recent publicity attending Dr. Westrick's activities had caused.

Consul officials said that hundreds of threats, made by letter and telephone, had driven the Westrick family to distraction. The police guard was assigned to the two-acre estate by Lieut. Joseph Faulkner, acting chief of the Scarsdale police, following a conference with federal agents in New York City.

Meanwhile, Dr. Westrick, whose activities in America in the last four months have stirred national interest, prepared to pack up and take leave of the Scarsdale residence following a request by the landlord, Harold A. Callan, that the Westrick family quit the estate.

To Leave at Once

Callan, who conferred with the Westricks last night, said the doctor had assured him that they were packing and would get out immediately. The request to leave, Callan told reporters, was based more on "indignation than legal justification."

Claiming that he did not know Westrick was an emissary of the German Reich, Callan declared: "Personally I would rather not have a representative of the German government in my house. If I had known that he occupied such a position and was representing the German government I would not have closed the deal."

Westrick, who has been in seclusion most of the week, yesterday briefly saw reporters after he had conferred with Carroll E. Mealey, commissioner of the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, regarding the status of his New York driver's license.

"My sole duty in this country is to prepare the way for trade between Germany and the United States after the European war," Dr. Westrick declared. He firmly declined to discuss the business lines he was endeavoring to get ready, and terminated the interview when he objected to photographers taking pictures.

Youth's Sight Depends On Delicate Transfer Of Cornea from Baby

DENVER, Colo., August 3—A 19-year-old Hugo, Colo., farm youth today impatiently awaited the verdict of doctors on whether a delicate operation in which the cornea of a still-born baby was transferred to his own sightless eye was a success.

Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, famous New York eye specialist, declared it would be six days before the results of the surgery could be accurately determined, and several months before the youth, Edward Murphy, could see again.

Dr. Castroviejo performed the operation before more than fifty doctors attending the summer graduate course of the Colorado Ophthalmological Society.

Murphy has been going blind for three years due to a clouded cornea and doctors were unable to hold out any hope that he would ever see again until the famous Spanish-born specialist agreed to undertake the operation.

11 MEN ESCAPE ILLINOIS PRISON THROUGH TUNNEL

SALEM, Ill., August 3—No trace has been found of eleven of the twelve men who tunneled their way to freedom from the Marion County jail at Salem, authorities reported today.

One of the fugitives, Ray Lowry, surrendered to police at his home in Centralia a few hours after the break yesterday.

The prisoners, Sheriff H. E. Vogt revealed, broke into an underpass in which the jail plumbing was installed, and from the underpass tunneled under the jail wall.

Twenty-one other prisoners refused to join in the escape, Vogt said.

Complete plans have been made for the welcoming ceremonies, which will include an official function similar to those given for all new governors.

The duke and duchess are now en route from Lisbon, Portugal, aboard the American liner Excalibur.

Authorities stated, however, that they knew nothing of the Windors' plans or itinerary after they arrive at Hamilton, Bermuda.

The Thanksgiving vacation will be Thursday and Friday, November 28 and 29, with the Christmas holiday season beginning December 20, classes resuming January 6.

Lower Humidity Expected To Relieve Ohio Area, Experts Say

By International News Service

After a brief recession from the 100-degree temperatures which gripped the state and most of the nation for 13 days, Ohio residents today prepared for another heat wave which was expected to strike this afternoon.

Meteorologists declared that although today would be partly cloudy, the mercury would probably climb to the mid-nineties. They predicted, however, that the heat would not be as uncomfortable as last week because of the low humidity which is expected to prevail over the weekend.

Despite the under-90 temperatures of Friday, three more deaths were attributed to the heat, bringing Ohio's toll for the past 15 days to 106.

Charles Tilman, 43, of Cincinnati, stricken by the heat July 31 died in a Cincinnati hospital yesterday. Heat was also blamed for the deaths of Courtney Barker, 56, Cincinnati, and Leonard Funck, 63, Aurora, Ind. Both died in Cincinnati hospitals.

Police were told that while Miss Grey was searching for bathing suits, Miss Nash apparently waded in the pool beyond her depth.

The model, who had previously been married and divorced, was planning to remarry a young man from her home town, Keyser, W. Va., within 10 days. Police announced that the girl's mother, Mrs. Mary Davis of Keyser, would leave shortly for New York.

Japs Could Last Three Weeks in War With U.S., Naval Officials Believe

WASHINGTON, August 3—The navy high command believes that Japan would last only three weeks in a war with the United States, it was learned authoritatively today.

It would require only three weeks, the admirals are convinced, for the navy to vanquish the Japanese sea forces, after which Nippon would either have to capitulate or be faced with slow starvation by blockade.

The U. S. fleet was in position to "surround and demolish" Japan's navy less than three months ago, according to information obtained by International News Service.

At that time—in May—the American battle force steamed out of its base at Honolulu and was gone—whereabouts unknown—for 10 days. Immediately after it returned to its base, Fleet Commander Admiral J. O. Richardson flew from Hawaii to Washington and it is understood, told President Roosevelt that:

At that time the Japanese fleet was maneuvering in the Caroline and Marshall Islands.

When the U. S. fleet left Honolulu, it steamed westward toward these islands, turning back only when Richardson was satisfied that his position would have assured an American victory, had battle ensued.

The navy's views, it was learned, were chiefly responsible for President Roosevelt's decision to embargo export of American aviation gasoline and scrap iron to Japan—an action taken about a week ago.

If Japan went to war against the United States, the navy's first move, it was understood, would be establishment of a blockade along a line embracing Hong Kong, Cavite in the Philippine Islands, Guam, and Southern Kamchatka. Rupture of Japanese overseas supply lines caused by such a blockade would force Tokyo either to send its fleet out to challenge the American fleet, or keep its warships safe but impotent at home behind the protection of shore batteries.

In event of a battle, the high command has informed Mr. Roosevelt, the superior quality and quantity of U. S. tonnage, plus the superior morale and gunnery of U. S. personnel, would insure annihilation of the Japanese fleet, and leave this country sufficient sea power to guard the Panama Canal and station some units in the Atlantic. The latter step, the navy believes, would be necessary only if the British fleet was destroyed or surrendered.

The envoy remarked that Japan "must risk friction with the United States" in seeking fulfillment of Tokyo's aims in the Far East.

In a frank statement to newspaper correspondents, Gen. Kisko said:

"The Netherlands Indies have been exploited and oppressed for a long time as a foreign colony."

"Emancipation of the oriental peoples is destined to be carried out by every means."

"Oil, rubber and the products there in the Netherlands Indies provide a world market. Japan has no intention of monopolizing these products, but feels it is necessary to seek a fair distribution."

The newspapers indicated that still further arrests are expected shortly. One of the Japanese held is Sateru Makihara, London manager of one of Japan's greatest export-import houses.

British police searched Makihara's home, but seized nothing.

With unruled diplomatic suavity, authoritative British quarters asserted that detention of the two Japanese "merely coincided" with arrests of Britons in Japan. They said the London arrests were "in no way in the nature of retaliation" against seizures of British subjects in Tokyo and other Japanese cities under suspicion of espionage.

Details regarding the arrest of Makihara, manager of the London office of the Mitsubishi Company, were not immediately divulged nor was it revealed whether any specific charge has been placed against him.

The other Japanese held is Shunsho Tanabe, acting manager of the London office of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha concern. Makihara was taken into custody last night at his London home.

Severe Steps Necessary

Despite the fact that authorized circles insisted that arrests of the Japanese were mere coincidence, it was recalled that British authorities previously made it plain that severe steps would be taken unless the Britons still held in Japan are released.

The Daily Sketch published its allegations regarding a Japanese sabotage ring under flaring headlines.

The newspaper claimed the sabotage gang has its roots in London, but that the network extends to far-flung regions of the Empire including Canada, Australia and Burma.

British agents said the Sketch, have known of the ring's existence for a long time and have been closely watching and unraveling details of its operations.

Simultaneously, British quarters charged that Germany and Japan are increasingly coordinating their activities and that a Nazi agent is stationed within the Japanese LONDON, August 3—A new climax in relations between Great Britain and Japan appeared inevitable today with disclosure that two prominent Japanese have been arrested in London under somewhat mystifying circumstances.

When the arrests were first revealed, informed quarters said the two men had been taken into custody under British defense regulations.

Later, however, it was understood that not defense regulations but Britain's aliens' law was invoked to carry out the detentions.

Official reports said that a third Japanese had been arrested in London and several at Singapore.

The Japanese embassy in London issued a statement describing these developments, but expressing hope that a satisfactory settlement would be reached.

The statement added that the Japanese ambassador is making vigorous inquiries.

Lewis Caw, of Zanesville, filed a $1,027 damage suit in Common Pleas Court Saturday against George Duncan, of East Liverpool, resulting from their auto collision April 20 on Route 277 between Atlanta and Clarksburg.

In the petition he charges Duncan with driving at an excessive rate of speed, with driving back to the right side of the highway before his car had safely cleared the truck and with striking the left front wheel of the truck with the right wheel of his own car, causing the truck to run in the ditch.

He claims the body and frame of his truck were damaged to the extent of more than $500 and valued his load of cabbage at $477.

RED BIRDS MOVE NEARER MILLERS IN SECOND SPOT

COLUMBUS, August 3 — For the first time since early in the season, the second-place slot of Minneapolis in the American Association was seriously threatened today.

For nearly half the season the Millers and Kansas City battled neck and neck for leadership, but then the Kaseys forged ahead, and, thanks to their 12th straight victory yesterday, are now 1½ full games ahead.

Meanwhile, Columbus, which had a tough time getting out of the cellar in early campaigning, has been coming on with a rush, winning a double-bill yesterday to stretch its winning streak to seven and climb within 3½ games of the slipping Millers. The latter dropped another tilt to St. Paul, 7 to 3, giving the Saints a sweep of the three-game series. The game was called at the end of the eighth to allow both teams to catch trains.

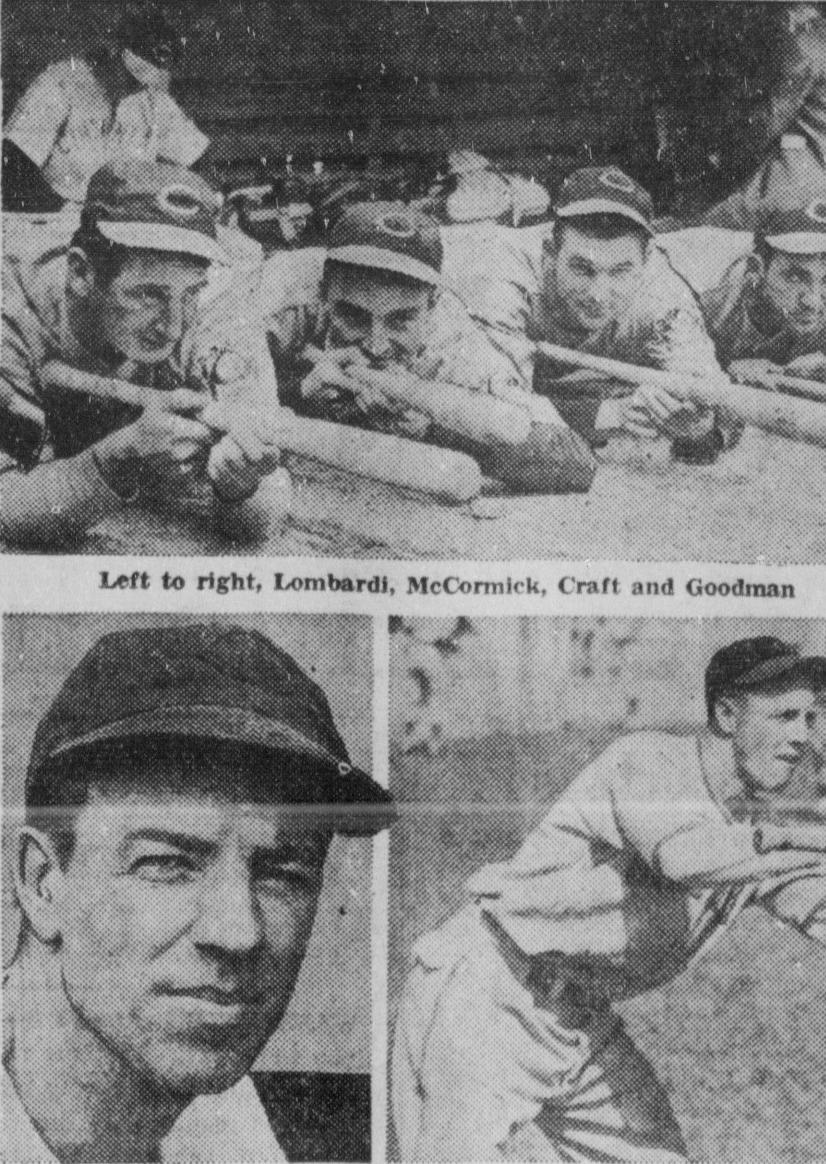

The latest tabulation gives Dr. Anderson 784,392 votes for first place in the Western Conference division and his closest competitor in the Big Ten, Mal Edward of Purdue, 113,086.

DAYTON FIGHTER WHIPS EX-CHAMP ARCHIBALD

DAYTON, August 3—Joe Marlin, Dayton featherweight basked in the limelight of nationalistic fame today after edging former world's champion Joey Archibald in a slam-bang ten-round fight before 2,100 screaming fans.

The vote for Marlin was split, with one judge and the referee giving him the nod while the other judge called the bout even.

Pitching, Brilliant Defensive Play and Reserve Strength Aid Reds

Willard Hershberger

William Werber

Linus Frey

Gene Thompson

Lew Riggs

Eddie Joost

March to the pennant. Itemized they read:

- (1) Pitching.
- (2) Fielding.
- (3) Hitting.
- (4) Reserve strength.

Without a doubt, the Redleg pitching staff is the best in the National league, and, with the possibility exception of their Ohio brethren, the Cleveland Indians, best in both loops.

WALTERS STARS

Bucky Walters, big winner last year, is equally as excellent this season. Already he has won 15 games. Paul Derringer, the other Cincy star, has won almost as many. Great help has come from Gene Thompson, who has won 10 games; Joe Beggs, a Yankee cast-off; Jim Turner, once of the Boston Bees, and Lloyd Moore.

If Walters and Derringer continue their blistering pace, which they set last year when they won 45 games between them, the Reds won't be headed unless their infield drops out.

And speaking of the infield, the Cincinnati team has one of the best defense units in the senior circuit. Bill Werber at third is playing great baseball. Lonnie Frey continues to join with Billy Myers and Eddie Joost in piling up double plays. Frank McCormick is a steady first sacker and one of the big offensive guns on the team.

Great Support

Redlegs players have made fewer errors than any other team in either loop. That means much in the long run where runs count in the payoff.

In the outfield, experts agree Harry Craft is one of the best outfielders in the league. Flanked by Ival Goodman and Morrie Arnoult, he hits in the pinch.

KAYAK II LIKED IN $20,000 RACE ON WEST COAST

HOLLYWOOD PARK, Cal., August 3—C. S. Howard's big Argentine horse, Kayak II, was the favorite today in the $20,000 Sun-set Handicap, traditional closing day feature of Hollywood Park.

A crowd of 40,000 was expected to be on hand for "getaway day."

Ten horses were slated to go to the post for the handicap, with Kayak II carrying top weight of 131 pounds. Johnny Adams, who flew from Chicago at Howard's request, will be up, while Kayak's stablemate, Advocate will be ridden by Jockey Scott.

Other horses entered in the race were Specify, which placed second to Challedon in the $50,000 Gold Cup last week, can't wait, Etolia II, Hysterical (which may scratch), Vain Bo, Beautiful II, Mr. Vernon II, and Big Flash.

HEROES AND GOATS

Heroes—Claude Passeau, Chicago Cubs, who struck out the last two men as the Cubs defeated the Dodgers; Dom DiMaggio, Red Sox, who hit a three-run homer as Boston trimmed Detroit; Babe Young, Giants, whose ninth inning homer gave New York a split with St. Louis in a doubleheader; Thornton Lee, White Sox, who pitched a two-hitter.

Goats—Jim Turner and Milt Shoffner, Reds, who were pounded for 13 hits by their ex-teammates, the Boston Bees; Sid Hudson, Senators, who blew up in the sixth to allow six runs to score.

The Two Ways

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Psalm 1; Matthew 7:24-27

By Alfred J. Buescher

Blessed is the man whose delight is in the law of Jehovah; and on His law doth he meditate day and night.

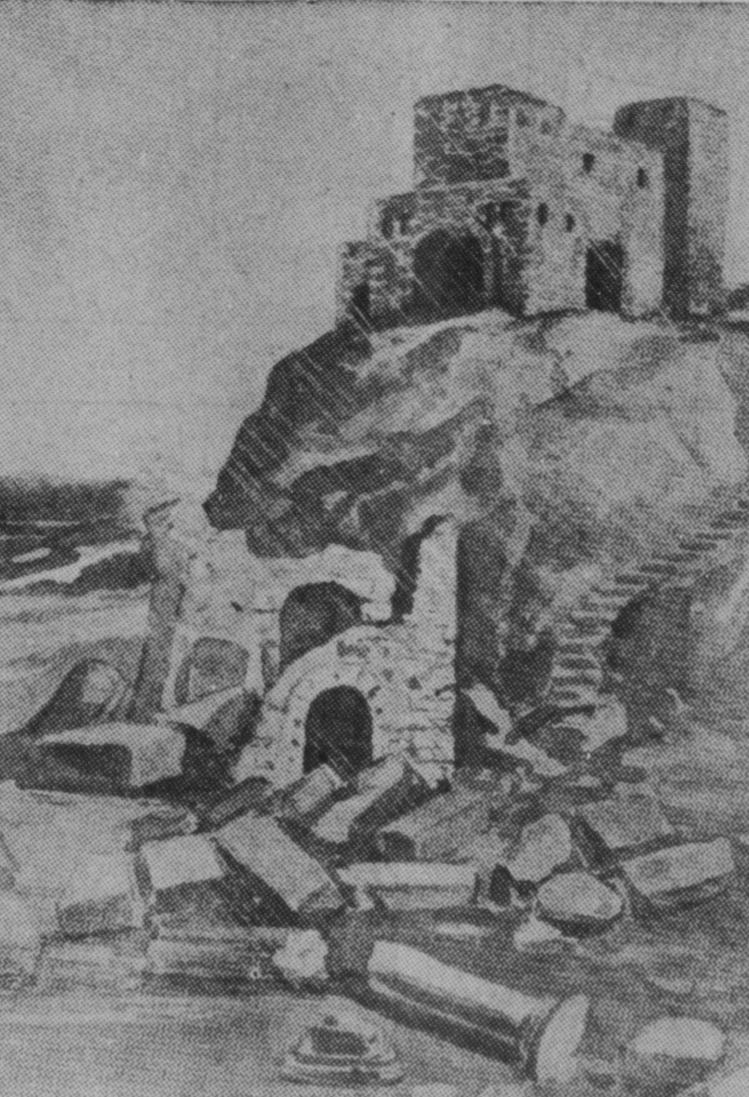

The righteous man shall be like a tree planted by the streams of water, that bringeth forth fruit in its season.

"The wicked are not so," says the Psalmist, "but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away," and is scattered.

"For Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; but the . . . wicked shall perish." (GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 1:6.)

Parable of the house on the rock and on the sand.

"For Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked shall perish."—Ps. 1:6.

The Two Ways

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 4, is Psalm 1; Matthew 7:24-27, the Golden Text being Psalm 1:6, "For Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked shall perish.")

TWO WAYS of life are illustrated for us in the lesson today—that of the righteous man, who does his best to live according to God's precepts; and the man who lives only for his own pleasure, with no moral or ethical standards. The one, whatever his station in life, whether humble or high, according to this world's views, is happy and prosperous. The other is doomed to failure, no matter how much of this world's riches he may obtain.

In the first part of the scripture lesson the psalmist tells the difference between the two very vividly. No author is given for this psalm, which many ascribe to Solomon. We do not know when it was written, nor where, but the rules laid down for real "blessedness" or happiness, are as true today as they were in the far-off days when they were penned.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the wicked."

Nor standeth in the way of sinners,

Nor sitteth in the seat of scoffers:

But his delight is in the law of Jehovah;

And on His law doth he meditate day and night."

God does not give men and women equal abilities. But whether we are gifted or very lowly, all of us have the power to do what is right and to choose our way of living. Those with little ability are equal to the clever in this way. If they live according to God's laws, they shall have their reward. While those who have great ability, and use it for the glory of the Creator and for the good of the world, will be equally blessed.

A man or woman who obeys God, not grudgingly and only on Sunday when he attends divine services, but all his life, every hour, every day, doing so gladly, "shall be like a tree planted by the streams of water," says the psalmist.

"That bringeth forth its fruit in its season,

Whose leaf also doth not wither; And whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Stands Serene After Storms

Such a man is not easily disturbed by the storms of life no matter how hard they may blow. He may not always be able to weather such storms, as far as material things are concerned, but his soul and spirit do not falter.

Like a strong tree whose roots run deep into the earth and suck up its moisture and life-giving nourishment, such a person may bend to the blasts of life, but will not go down, but stand upright again when the storm is past and be as strong as before.

The psalmist continues:

"The wicked are not so, But are like the chaff which the wind driveth away."

In olden times the chaff or useless part of grain was swept away by the winnowing fan. The threshing floors were usually placed on high ground to take advantage of every breeze. The corn was laid on the ground and thrown up against the wind by the threshers. The heavier grains fell to the ground to be gathered up for bread; but the chaff was carried away by the wind.

"Therefore the wicked shall not stand in the judgment, Nor sinners in the congregation."

The Two Ways

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Psalm 1; Matthew 7:14-21

By Alfred J. Buescher

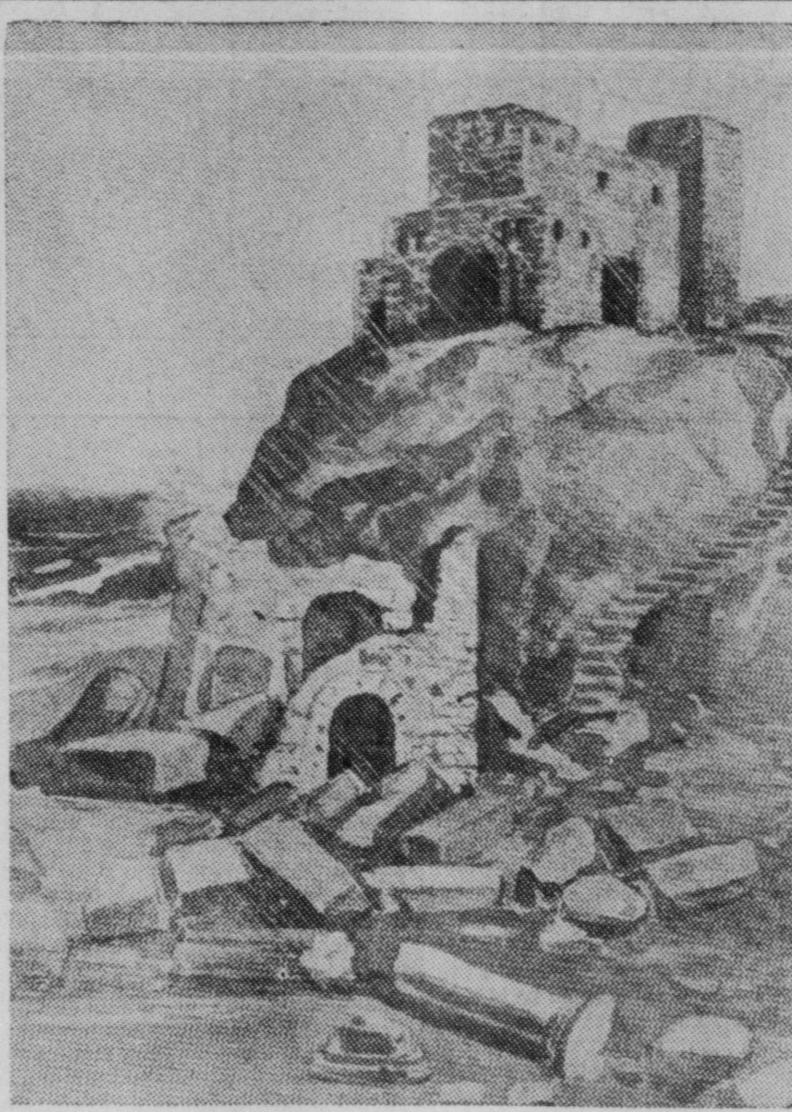

"For Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; the . . . wicked shall perish." (GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 1:6.)

Blessed is the man whose delight is in the law of Jehovah; and on His law doth he meditate day and night.

The righteous man shall be like a tree planted by the streams of water, that bringeth forth fruit in its season.

"The wicked are not so," says the Psalmist, "but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away," and is scattered.

Parable of the house on the rock and on the sand.

"For Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked shall perish." (Ps. 1:6.)

The Two Ways

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 4, is Psalm 1; Matthew 7:24-27, the Golden Text being Psalm 1:6, "For Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked shall perish.")

TWO WAYS of life are illustrated for us in the lesson today—that of the righteous man, who does his best to live according to God's precepts; and the man who lives only for his own pleasure, with no moral or ethical standards. The one, whatever his station in life, whether humble or high, according to this world's views, is happy and prosperous. The other is doomed to failure, no matter how much of this world's riches he may obtain.

In the first part of the scripture lesson the psalmist tells the difference between the two very vividly. No author is given for this psalm, which many ascribe to Solomon. We do not know when it was written, nor where, but the rules laid down for real "blessedness," or happiness, are as true today as they were in the far-off days when they were penned.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the wicked; Nor standeth in the way of sinners; Nor sitteth in the seat of scoffers; But his delight is in the law of Jehovah; And on His law doth he meditate day and night."

God does not give men and women equal abilities. But whether we are gifted or very lowly, all of us have the power to do what is right and to choose our way of living. Those with little ability are equal to the clever in this way. If they live according to God's laws, they shall have their reward. While those who have great ability, and use it for the glory of the Creator and for the good of the world, will be equally blessed.

A man or woman who obeys God, not grudgingly and only on Sunday when he attends divine services, but all his life, every hour, every day, doing so gladly, "shall be like a tree planted by the streams of water," says the psalmist.

"That bringeth forth its fruit in its season, Whose leaf also doth not wither; And whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Stands Serene After Storms

Such a man is not easily disturbed by the storms of life no matter how hard they may blow. He may not always be able to weather such storms, as far as material things are concerned, but his soul and spirit do not falter.

Like a strong tree whose roots run deep into the earth and suck up its moisture and life-giving nourishment, such a person may bend to the blasts of life, but will not go down, but stand upright again when the storm is past and be as strong as before.

The psalmist continues: "The wicked are not so, But are like the chaff which the wind driveth away."

In olden times the chaff or useless part of grain was swept away by the winnowing fan. The threshing floors were usually placed on high ground to take advantage of every breeze. The corn was laid on the ground and thrown up against the wind by the threshers. The heavier grains fell to the ground to be gathered up for bread; but the chaff was carried away by the wind.

WAR IN NEUTRALITY ZONE

ANOTHER naval battle in the Western Hemisphere gives the Americas something to think about. The brief conflict took place near the Brazilian island of Trinidad in the early evening. The location was well within the neutrality zone specified by a earlier Pan-American conference. It is thought that the British ship discovered the Nazi merchant raider while it was refueling and possibly refitting at some secret base.

The American republics may make a formal protest to both belligerents, but probably will do nothing more. Similar incidents are likely to occur as long as the war goes on, for while German raiders roam the Atlantic British ships will hunt for them and there will be fights when they meet.

Perhaps this country and its sister republics will be fortunate if there are only a few such battles within the neutrality zone, and if none of their own ships are ever caught in the vicinity when things get too hot.

COAST GUARD'S 150 YEARS

BIRTHDAY greetings to the United States Coast Guard! It is celebrating 150 years of existence this month. Some Coast Guard stations have been keeping open house and putting on special drills for the public's delight and edification.

The Coast Guard is an outgrowth of an earlier Life Saving service and the Revenue Cutter service. In time of war it takes orders from the U. S. Navy. In peace time the Treasury Department is in control.

The Coast Guard's duties are varied and important. They include saving life and property at sea; the prevention of smuggling, including rum-running; the removal of floating objects dangerous to navigation; protection of the revenue; law enforcement regarding anchorage, quarantine and neutrality, and the suppression of mutinies. In time of floods, such as those along the Ohio and tributary rivers, Coast Guard boats and crews travel to the scene on freight cars and proceed with their life-saving duties far inland from sea or Great Lakes.

In these days of getting acquainted with our national defenses and feeling patriotic about them, it would be a fine day's outing or an interesting part of a touring vacation to visit any available Coast Guard station.

Tens of millions of people, it is feared, may starve in Europe next winter. And the Nazis will blame that on Britain.

HEAVY TOLL OF DESTROYERS

WASHINGTON — The most important question discussed inside the Administration today is whether the British can hold out, and what the United States can do to bolster British resistance. It is a question that weighs heavily and grimly on the hard-boiled realists in the Army, Navy and State Department, and on the President himself.

For, giving the British all the breaks possible, it seems incredible that they can hold out against the poison gas, intensive air bombardment, and all the other modern mechanics of war the Nazis are mobilizing to hurl against them.

This pessimistic forecast is taken despite the fact that the British position has improved materially. The confidential surveys made by U. S. observers show that the German preponderance in the air is now only 11 to 5 in fighter planes, although it remains 12 to 1 in carrying power in bombers. The British naturally have concentrated more on fighter planes in order to ward off bombers, and until recently have had fewer bombers to attack Germany.

Official reports also show a great superiority on the part of British pilots, and a dogged, undaunted courage. Nevertheless, the comparative air strength is still overwhelmingly in Hitler's favor.

However, it is at sea that the British have suffered most severely. The censored press cables have revealed only fragments of the terrific punishment taken by British merchant vessels, and also by their destroyer convoys.

In fact, the outcome of the Battle of Britain may depend largely upon destroyers. For it is this type of vessel which has been exposed to air bombardment and submarines more than any other part of the British Navy. In recent weeks the toll has been so heavy that an average of one destroyer a day has been either sunk or damaged. The damaging of a vessel is just as effective for the time being as sinking it, because it has to be laid up in drydock.

How serious have been British losses is shown by the fact that its Navy started the war with 183 destroyers and now has fewer than 100. All of which indicates the rapid success of the new Nazi strategy of starving Britain out.

U. S. DESTROYER STRENGTH

This situation has led to the question now being gravely discussed in the State, War and Navy Departments, whether the United States would be serving its own best interests by selling 50 or 100 of its World War destroyers to Great Britain.

The United States now has more destroyers than any other two navies put together—a total of 238. Of these, 123 were built during or immediately after the World War, but have been kept in excellent condition. Their engines have been packed in grease, and every two or three years half of them were placed on sea duty, while the other half were laid up. Thus they continue to be valuable fighting ships today.

Inside the Navy Department, many of the higher-ups believe it would be wise (Continued on Page Six)

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

LOUIS JOHNSON'S recent forced retirement from the assistant secretaryship of war created a greater commotion in Washington than War Secretary Harry H. Woodring's resignation did a short time previously.

That President Roosevelt was dissatisfied with Woodring had been known for a long time. When he finally quit, the story was circulated that he did so because he disapproved of the administration's policy of sending American military equipment to the British, and to the French, until they yielded to Herr Hitler.

However, it was no secret that White House maneuvering to get him out of the cabinet as tactfully as possible antedated the outbreak of hostilities in Europe by at least two or three years.

And the general supposition was that the President planned to give the war secretaryship to Johnson as soon as he could get rid of Harry. Johnson is quoted by his friends as telling them that F. D. actually had promised him the post. Whether or not an outright promise was made, official Washington was pretty sure Louis would get the portfolio as soon as Harry could be "wished out" without involving too much of a scene.

There was widespread agreement that the change, as expected, would be an excellent thing. Many influential folk spoke of Woodring as an inefficient war secretary. It was the consensus that Johnson was a bang-up assistant. When either of the two military affairs committees in congress had occasion to consult experts, it invariably included Johnson among its witnesses, but somewhat conspicuously disregarded Woodring.

STIMSON INSTEAD OF JOHNSON

When Harry ultimately did resign, it may not have been specifically by request, but unquestionably that was what it amounted to.

And then Henry L. Stimson got the secretaryship instead of Louis. Well, it was a shock. Still, Stimson was explicable, as well as Frank Knox in the navy secretaryship.

A situation had arisen in which the President thought he ought to have a coalition cabinet and Johnson wouldn't have fitted into a coalition, being a Democrat. Knox's appointment doubtless miffed a good many Democrats. Still, Secretary Charles Edison already was out voluntarily and no particular individual was first in line to succeed Woodring. All the same, there was at least a nominal reason for preferring Stimson; an unforeseen emergency had presented itself, the presidential reasoning was that he needed a Republican at the war department's head, and Louis wasn't a Republican.

AN ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

The White House tried to explain that Johnson's services were required as a presidential administrative assistant—in effect that he was being drafted for duty as a contact man between F. D. and his defense administrators.

And then Henry L. Stimson got the secretaryship instead of Louis. Well, it was a shock. Still, Stimson was explicable, as well as Frank Knox in the navy secretaryship.

• MILK IS generally acknowledged as the most nearly perfect food. It provides the dietary essentials—protein, fat and carbohydrates—as well as minerals and vitamins. Nowadays with the improvement in dairy hygiene and Public Health inspection it has lost the dangers of causing intestinal infection in the summer and its easy digestibility makes it an ideal summer beverage food.

Source of Vitamin A

Milk is an excellent source of vitamin A, something frequently lacking in our American diets. Without vitamin A growth of children can be impaired, night blindness can result and resistance to infections is lowered, especially in the respiratory tract. A quart of milk provides all the calcium needed by an individual for a day, much of the phosphorus, at least one-fourth of the energy and some of the vitamin B, C and D. ### CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

IN THE paper which contained the story of the death of Clarabell Ackerman and the possible explanation that the two death bullets had been intended for another, one statement stood out in terrifying clarity to Linda.

It stated that the charwoman who cleaned the Bagley offices was the wife of the night watchman, John Parrish, who had been on duty. But that was not all.

Joe, the elevator operator, explained that he had brought Mr. Parrish upstairs, but he had not taken him downstairs. How, then, had he gone to the first floor? Why had he avoided the elevator? Why was the relationship between the two elderly Parrishes a secret even to those who employed them?

The story implied that the elderly janitor and watchman was to be questioned again.

Linda let the paper fall. She knew what that would mean—question after question hurled at a tired, white-haired old man who could only shake his weary head in denial. Only, if his wife was employed, too, why had he not told about that, and why had he taken such precautions not to go down on the elevator?

The story explained that he had been signed out on the book at an hour before the coroner placed the murder, and the writer insinuated that he might have come down, signed out, then let himself be taken up, secure in the knowledge that he had given himself an hour of leaving in the book which would protect him. Had he signed out in front of the elevator operator's inquisitive eyes he could not have done that.

It was foolish, Linda decided. Mr. Parrish couldn't have done it.

But when the story of the murder continued to baffle the police department for three more days and a solution seemed no nearer, she noticed that the Parrish name was figuring more deeply in the case.

The musical comedy, "Swing the Chorus" where Ronald was winding up his engagement, as was the whole cast, was a sell-out. People wanted to see him and hear him because of his indirect connection with the case.

Linda was aware that some of the applicants who came to the Bagley office merely wanted to look at her. She was glad one afternoon when Robert came in. He looked so strong and protective and brown against the silver and white furnishings of the feminine room.

"I just drove down from my work," he said. "I thought you might be able to slip away for an hour."

Billie Anne, she wanted to Still, Secretary Charles Edison already was out voluntarily and no particular individual was first in line to succeed Woodring. All the same, there was at least a nominal reason for preferring Stimson; an unforeseen emergency had presented itself, the presidential reasoning was that he needed a Republican at the war department's head, and Louis wasn't a Republican.

Louis took it in pretty good part. The President asked him to carry on as assistant secretary and he did it—until it was intimated that Secretary Stimson wanted his job for a selection of his own. Then he resigned in earnest, and F. D. accepted—"regretfully," but he accepted.

AN ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

The White House tried to explain that Johnson's services were required as a presidential administrative assistant—in effect that he was being drafted for duty as a contact man between F. D. and his defense administrators.

But an administrative assistantship doesn't amount to much. It calls for an incumbent with what the President once called a "passion for anonymity." It doesn't compare with an assistant war secretaryship, with possibilities of being promoted into a 100 percent cabinet post.

Moreover, it takes a middling loyal pro-Roosevelt Democrat to retain his composure in face of the spectacle of a Republican war secretary, in a Democratic cabinet, shoving a Democrat assistant secretary out of office, in order to make room for a Republican assistant.

That is to say, Judge Robert Porter Patterson, Secretary Stimson's choice for the place, is a Republican.

Protective Food

Milk proteins are the best building material for growth and repair of body tissues. The proteins in milk are composed of amino acids similar to those found in the human body and therefore are well adapted to conversion into body material.

Milk and the dairy products are really among our most economical foods as they give more nutritive value at less cost than so many other foods. Government nutritionists suggest that from one-fifth to one-third of the average American family's allowance for

Milk is an excellent source of vitamin A, something frequently lacking in our American diets. Without vitamin A growth of children can be impaired, night blindness can result and resistance to infections is lowered, especially in the respiratory tract. Of the minimum daily requirement of 3,000 units of vitamin A, one quart of milk contains 2,000 and 1½ ounces of butter will supply 1,500 units.

Answer—Tables like this have been given in this column many times. The complete list is too long, but may be obtained in such books as mine, The Balanced Diet (D. Suddenly Robert spoke. "Billie Anne, she wanted to ask Where was she? He seemed to read her mind.

"Billie Anne sends her condolences and she's flying back unexpectedly today."

U. S. PLANNING HOSPITAL FOR WAR VETERANS

WASHINGTON, August 3—The Veterans Administration announcement that new 1,100-bed veterans hospital will be located "somewhere in central Pennsylvania," caused Pennsylvania's members of congress today to campaign for location of the hospital in their respective home districts.

While Veterans Administrator Frank T. Hines emphasized that the site for the hospital has not yet been selected, Rep. Boland (D) of Scranton, the house whip, already has made a strong move to have the hospital erected in the Pocono Mountains outside of Scranton.

Members representing Harrisburg and other Pennsylvania cities also insisted the hospital be built in their city.

Roosevelt took Bullitt sharply to task for these statements. He said they were untrue, and that if Bullitt didn't know that, he ought to.

Bullitt ran for cover. He claimed he had been misquoted, that he had said the 84-year-old Petain was not a Fascist or under German control. The lame explanation obviously did not impress the President.

Note—Roosevelt also made it very clear that he had no intention of falling into the Nazis' trap of feeding their victims this winter, after Hitler had robbed them of their food and left them to starve. Bullitt wants the U. S. to send food supplies to France.

Mr. White's headquarters and that of the Speakers' Division, will be at the Western campaign headquarters, 120 South LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Representative White, of the Thirteenth Ohio Congressional District, is regarded as one of the outstanding young men in positions of influence in the Republican Party. Just 38 years old last January, he is serving his second term in Congress having been first elected in 1936 when Republican prospects were at a low ebb. His ability was recognized when the present Congress convened by an assignment as one of the Republican members of the important House Appropriations Committee. He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Ohio in the last Primary campaign and made an excellent run.

Mr. White is in the newspaper business. He is associate publisher of the Reflector-Herald of Norwalk, Ohio, and is vice-president of the Sandusky (Ohio) Newspapers, Inc. He was a delegate from Ohio to the 1928 Republican National Convention and an alternate to the 1932 convention. ### N. HOLLAND NOT TO FACE LOSS OF STREET LIGHTS

Both New Holland councilmen and Dayton Power and Light Company officials Saturday labeled reports of "blackouts" in New Holland because of delinquent street lighting bills as "fantastic and ridiculous."

At a meeting of village councilmen and officials of the light company Wednesday night, the question of delinquent light bills was discussed, but officials said that "blackout" measures were not even hinted. Dudley Roth, president of the New Holland council, stated that although the village was having its financial troubles the same as other villages all over the country, the condition of its treasury was not serious.

Street lights were out for a short time Thursday night, but power company officials said that it was caused by minor line trouble.

Washington Merry-Go- Round

policy for the United States to let Great Britain have fifty or 100 of these old destroyers. They look at it not from a sentimental viewpoint, because the U. S. Navy, if anything, is anti-British. But from the hard-boiled question of Western Hemisphere defense, Navy chiefs figure that our best defense is to make sure the British do not fail.

U. S. MAGINOT LINE

If you study naval strategy, you will see how carefully the British Navy has picked its bases, and how true was that famous boast "Britannia Rules the Waves." What the British did, years ago, was to secure all the outlets into the Atlantic. From Capetown at the tip end of Africa to Gibraltar at the mouth of the Mediterranean, they can control the coast of France, Belgium and Holland, and can dominate the North Sea and the mouth of the Baltic.

In other words, the British Isles constitute a sort of marine Maginot Line, and U. S. naval strategists figure that once that line is broken it will be impossible to stop an unfriendly fleet from steaming down into the waters of South America and the Caribbean.

This, it would be far easier, and cheaper, to bolster the British with some destroyers and keep the German-Italian navies bottled up, than have to face them along the thousands of miles of unfortified South American coast line.

BRITISH WAITED
The situation in the opinion of both Army and Navy strategists, is not dissimilar from position of the British in regard to France. As long as Hitler was faced with a strong French army, Britain stood in no real danger. But once the Nazis broke through the Maginot Line, there was no bulwark to stop them from overrunning the rest of Europe.

The situation has other possible points of similarity. When the French were still defending the Maginot Line, the British, worried over home defense, kept most of their airplanes at home. The French claim that, given more British air support, they might have held out.

Likewise one school of American strategy which believes, as did the British, that U. S. destroyers should be kept at home to protect the Western Hemisphere when Hitler finally breaks through the British marine Maginot Line. But the majority of higher-up strategists figure that by that time it will be too late.

Meanwhile, however, there is no way for the President to transfer these destroyers, unless Congress passes an act giving him that power. And the isolationist clique in Congress shows no disposition to permit that—at least until after a tremendous fight. And by that time Hitler may be marching up Piccadilly and preparing to turn the British into a chill on Inauguration Day.

Nineteen hundred forty is a year of strange omen. Does "death look gigantically down?" If you are superstitious it can't be without interest that every President elected during the past century in a year divisible by 20 has died in office. This fact spotlights the vice presidential nominations.

In 1840 William Henry Harrison, son of Benjamin Harrison, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and grandfather of President Benjamin Harrison, was elected. On April 4, 1841, one month after taking the oath of office, he was dead of pneumonia which traced to a chill on Inauguration Day.

In 1860 Abraham Lincoln was elected. He lived out his first term and was reelected, but he, too, died in the first year of his second term at the hand of John Wilkes Booth.

In 1880 James A. Garfield, the last President born in a log cabin, was chosen to sit in the White House. In less than three months from his inauguration, Charles J. Guiteau, a disappointed job hunter, took his revenge with a pistol, and Garfield, after weeks of suffering, died September 19.

In 1900 William McKinley was elected. He had been previously elected in 1896, but before the first year of his second term had expired, he met his end at the hand of Leon F. Czolgosz, an anarchist, and the first Roosevelt began his first term.

In 1920 Warren G. Harding, the first Senator to become President, was the successful candidate. In his third year, August 2, 1923, he died of pneumonia.

Such is the record. And curiously, these are the only Presidents who have died in office. All the other years have been lucky.

It may ease the curse to state

Wendell Willkie, ex-Democrat, on the Republican ticket, and Henry Wallace, ex-Republican on the Democratic ticket. It sounds goofy, fellow citizens, but there you are. Politics makes strange bedfellows, and the 1940 crop takes every prize. The G.O.P. goes Jeffersonian, and Jefferson's name is booted by the New Deal.

The other day a heated Hoosier asked me, "Can I vote for Roosevelt and not for Wallace?" And Governor Sam Jones of Louisiana says he is "1,000 percent" agin' Corn Wallace but he's for Roosevelt.

Brethren, you are in a trap. If you take F.D.R. you will have to make sure the British do not fail.

100 Agriculturalists Of Four Counties Hear Government Policies Assailed

SEVERAL ON PROGRAM

War Diverting Attention Of Nation From Domestic Woe, Audience Hears

"One of the main reasons we are facing war in the world today is that war diverts our attention from domestic troubles, and justifies increased government expenditures and debt," declared Perry L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Friday, as he addressed a meeting of more than 100 farmers gathered in Memorial Hall for the district Farm Bureau conference.

Striking at the government's national defense program, he added, "these expenditures do not increase the supply of useful goods and services, but will be for guns, powder, tanks, airplanes, all of which will be literally thrown down the sewer."

Turning attention to the government's program of "agricultural restriction and artificial scarcity," President Green told assembled agriculturists from Fairfield, Hocking, Ross and Pickaway Counties that such a policy was leading to lower farm prices, unemployment, insecurity and financial war.

Other speaker during the session was C. C. Blair, supervisor of Farm Bureau field service. Before turning the meeting into a discussion, both Green and Blair emphasized the need for each individual farmer to understand his own problems and determine what policies he should follow, and then to act through organization.

Council Work Discussed

L. F. Warbington, director of education of the Ohio Farm Bureau, delivered the opening address for the afternoon session. He described the work of the 550 Farm Bureau Advisory Councils now being conducted by over 5,000 farm families, and stressed the need for more. To comply with the need for reduction among farm leaders, he described a four-week training school which is being planned for cooperative managers. The school will be held at Columbus the latter part of October, he said.

Edwin J. Bath, legislative representative, discussed the proposed Homestead Amendment of the state constitution to exempt from taxation all residential and farm real estate up to $5,000. He neither endorsed nor rejected the amendment, but recommended that farmers consider it. Reviewing the taxation problem, he pointed out that he favored lowering of monopoly prices and interest rates and removing restrictive monetary policies and narrowing the spreads of distribution costs as a solution to unemployment rather than any form of subsidies.

Chairman of the meeting was George Hamman, Farm Bureau trustee from Williamsport. The meeting was one of the 22 held in the state during the last week of July and the second and third weeks of August under the auspices of the board of trustees of the Ohio Farm Bureau in cooperation with affiliated county farm bureaus.

THREE HELD IN PLOT; SUBMARINE USED BY GROUP

MILWAUKEE, August 3 — Solution of an extortion plot in which $100,000 was to have been retrieved by means of a home made submarine, was announced by police today.

Under arrest were Walter Paul Minx, 23, his brother Kurt Frederick, 27, and Daniel Carter, 28, a brother-in-law.

Walter, police said, initiated and directed the plot to extort $100,000 from Rowland H. Davies, manager of Sears Roebuck and Company's Milwaukee stores and, police said, made and planted the bomb which exploded in a Sears store July 23.

One of four extortion notes written to Davies directed him to fly in a plane over Lake Michigan at night, and signal with his landing lights when he dropped the money. Walter, according to the plan as revealed by police, was to dash to the spot in the homemade submarine, recover the money, submerge, and head for shore. When near shore, police said, Walter was to come to the surface, scuttle the sub, and with the aid of a life belt swim to the beach.

CHILD, 6, BITTEN BY COPPERHEAD SNAKE, IMPROVES

ADEL, Ga., August 3—The apparent improvement of 6-year-old Leitha Ann Rowan, bitten by a copperhead moccasin during weird "snake handling" religious rites, was hailed today by the followers of the "Free Holiness" cult.

However, Dr. H. W. Clements, who examined the child, reported her condition "is still serious."

Leitha Ann's mother refused to allow the physician to treat her daughter, only permitting him to bandage the wound in her hand.

Meanwhile, the father, Albert Rowan, a tenant farmer, and the Rev. W. T. Lipham, leader of the "Free Holiness" cult, paced separately in the county jail where they will remain. Sheriff W. T. Daughtry said, "until I am told by the doctor Leitha Ann is out of danger."

Both prisoners, the sheriff revealed, have refused food and water since their incarceration. They will be charged with murder, the officer said if the child's wound proves fatal.

The "snake handling" was described by Reuben Rowan, uncle of the little girl, for the benefit of Superior Judge W. R. Smith. The family dropped their work in the fields, he said, when Albert Rowan caught the snake.

They gathered around, "speaking tongues." One man, "having gained history," grabbed the snake, and passed it on to his 9-year-old son who passed it on to his 7-year-old brother, Leitha Ann, seeing other members of the group handling the serpent, took it despite her mother's warnings not to handle the snake unless she "had victory."

The snake sank its fangs into the little girl's hand and she collapsed. Judge Smith granted a temporary injunction restraining the cult from further snake handling.

According to the cult's tenets, followers can handle poisonous snakes safely "when the power is on them," their faith counteracting the serpents' venom.

CHILD, 6, BITTEN BY COPPERHEAD SNAKE, IMPROVES

ADEL, Ga., August 3—The apparent improvement of 6-year-old Leitha Ann Rowan, bitten by a copperhead moccasin during weird "snake handling" religious rites, was hailed today by the followers of the "Free Holiness" cult.

However, Dr. H. W. Clements, who examined the child, reported her condition "is still serious."

Leitha Ann's mother refused to allow the physician to treat her daughter, only permitting him to bandage the wound in her hand.

Meanwhile, the father, Albert Rowan, a tenant farmer, and the Rev. W. T. Lipham, leader of the "Free Holiness" cult, paced separate cells in the county jail where they will remain, Sheriff W. T. Daughtry said, "until I am told by the doctor Leitha Ann is out of danger."

Both prisoners, the sheriff revealed, have refused food and water since their incarceration. They will be charged with murder, the officer said if the child's wound proves fatal.

The "snake handling" was described by Reuben Rowan, uncle of the little girl, for the benefit of Superior Judge W. R. Smith. The family dropped their work in the fields, he said, when Albert Rowan caught the snake.

They gathered around, "speaking tongues." One man, "having gained history," grabbed the snake, and passed it on to his 9-year-old son who passed it on to his 7-year-old brother. Leitha Ann, seeing other members of the group handling the serpent, took it despite her mother's warnings not to handle the snake unless she "had victory."

The snake sank its fangs into the little girl's hand and she collapsed.

Judge Smith granted a temporary injunction restraining the cult from further snake handling.

According to the cult's tenets, followers can handle poisonous snakes safely "when the power is on them," their faith counteracting the serpents' venom.

DANCES FINANCE FIRE DEPT.

LARKSPUR, Cal.—There's a hot time in the old town or Larkspur tonight, and the fire department is very happy about it. The Larkspur volunteer fire department is the only one in the country which operates without a cent of taxes. This strange state of affairs is effected through an annual season of Saturday night dances throughout the summer. Dances yield enough profit to finance operation of the fire department.

One of four extortion notes written to Davies directed him to fly in a plane over Lake Michigan at night, and signal with his landing lights when he dropped the money. Walter, according to the plan as revealed by police, was to dash to the spot in the homemade submarine, recover the money, submerge, and head for shore. When near shore, police said, Walter was to come to the surface, scuttle the sub, and with the aid of a life belt swim to the beach.

During the night German planes

Debate May Be Long

There was no organized opposition to mobilization of the National Guard. Senate Majority Leader Barkley predicted debate would not last more than two days.

Woodring, whose retirement from the cabinet was attributed to his reported refusal to approve the President's military aid-to-the Allies program, said:

"I cannot see the need of committing the army to war at this time, and I should like to see the bill amended so that it does not become effective until, and after, the chief of staff of the U. S. Army has first advised the senate in writing that the voluntary system has completely broken down."

Shortly after the President repeated his request for conscription, the senate military affairs committee refused to limit to 1,000,000 the number of men between the ages of 21 and 31 liable for one year's military training.

The War Department estimated the 21 to 31 age bracket contains 12,000,000 men.
